RELEVANT EXPERIENCE

Having worked in adult mental health as a qualified clinical psychologist for over 11 years, I have significant experience of carrying out psychological assessments in relation to a range of psychological difficulties. A significant proportion of this has been focused on suitability for psychological therapy and identifying how any needs identified can best be met.

I have also carried out assessments related to parental mental health and assessments for other mental health professionals to give a psychological view on their patients' care going forward.

I have worked with a range of presentations including complex trauma, PTSD, depression, anxiety, personality difficulties, long standing interpersonal difficulties, post natal depression and work related stress. This work has been summarised in high quality psychological reports for other health professionals. I am also experienced in putting forward a psychological perspective in multidisciplinary forums where others do not necessarily have training in psychological theories and methods.

For full details of work history please refer to the attached Appendix.
